Budweiser Classic concludes season at Lincoln Lanes

A total of 64 area bowlers converged Saturday on Danville’s Lincoln Lanes for the final Budweiser Classic tournament of the year.

Of the 31 bowlers on the high side, fifth seed Ed Lavin fell to fourth place Kevin West. West then met Brian Sparrow and lost by a fine 257-247 score. Next in line was second seed Art Wagoner, who held on for a 170-167 win. He advanced to meet top seed Jason Woodworth. Woodworth won out by a 225-192 margin and advanced to the chance for the $1,000 payday.

On the low side, after the four-game qualifying,

Bill Reick disposed of fifth seed Harry Powell. Third place Mark New won in a close match, defeating Reick, 187-174. New then met and dispatched second seed Doug Wagoner. He advanced to meet top seed Terrence Cloyd.

Cloyd advanced to meet Woodworth. In a very competitive, Woodworth prevailed by a 236-210 score.
