One driver out, others pick up load for Gulf Coast relief

A woman who reportedly was going to take relief items to Louisiana will not be doing so but other truck drivers have stepped up to take donations.

A story in Wednesday's issue said Margaret

Huckleby of Hoopeston was going to take donations to Louisiana.

In a telephone interview Wednesday, Huckleby said she would be unable to take the items because FEMA (Federal Emergency Management Agency) regulations forbid combining her FEMA-provided load of ice with donations from residents.

That doesn't mean things donated locally will be left here.

A local trucking company has agreed to take donations to a staging area at a Mississippi Air Force base.

MH Hauling, owned by Mark Hathaway of Rossville, were expected to leave Thursday with the items and be in Mississippi Friday.
