RCO sets meeting for National Register of Historic Places

ROSSVILLE—The Rossville Community Organization (RCO) hold an informational meeting concerning the possibility of listing various Rossville buildings and homes on the National Register of Historic Places. This meeting will take place on November 17 at the library of the Rossville/Alvin Community Center and High School. The meeting will start at 7 p.m..

While owners of specific historic properties in Ross-ville have been invited, the meeting is opened to any interested persons or organizations. The public is encouraged to attend.

The National Register of Historic Places is the Nation's official list of cultural resources worthy of preservation. Authorized under the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966, the National Register is part of a national program to coordinate and support public and private efforts to identify, evaluate, and protect our historic and archeological resources. Properties listed in the Register include districts, sites, buildings, structures, and objects that are significant in American history, architec-

Church to conduct survey

During November, members of the First United Methodist Church of Hoopeston, 403 East Main, conduct a telephone survey of area residents. Their intent is to strengthen the attendance of all churches and find people who have no local church relationship.

They will ask only 2 questions: 1.) "Do you have a church home where you attend or maintain membership?" If they do not have a church home the next question will be: 2.) "May we send you some information about our United Methodist church?"

If you would like information about the United Methodist Church of Hoopeston, please call the church office, (217) 283-6738 between 8 a.m.-noon.

ture, archeology, engineering, and culture. The National Register is administered by the National Park Service, which is part of the U.S. Department of the Interior.

In 1974, the Geography Department of the University of Illinois did a survey of Vermilion County for potential properties which may be eligible for the National Register. While several structures in Rossville were identified, no action was taken. In the 30 years since, there have been many changes in the community, with various structures, and in the criteria for eligibility for the Register. The Executive Committee of RCO, through its Visions Meetings, contacted the Illinois office of the Register to look at an update of possible sites. An informal walk through was made this summer, and recommendations were made for potential buildings and homes.

The purpose of this meeting is to get some of this information out to interested property owners, to look at what the application process, and to discuss possible benefits to the structure, for the owners, and for the community.

Police News

A 74-year-old Hoopeston woman reported Tuesday that someone broke a window and cracked a window on her door in the 600 block of East Penn.

Rory R. Kempen, 19, of 901 Wyman turned himself in to police at 7:45 p.m. Wednesday. Wanted on a Vermilion County warrant for failure to appear for arraignment, he was taken to the Public Safety Building, Danville.
