Contestants, assistance sought for "Little Miss Sweetcorn"

Girls ages four to 16 are being sought for the third annual Little Miss Sweetcorn Pageant.

Contestants will be divided into age groups, with a winner from each group. An overall winner will be announced and also Miss Photogenic, said organizer Angie Simpson. Girls will be judged on evening gown/beauty, patriotic and photogenic.

Along with contestants, Simpson is also asking for donations to put together gift bags for each contestant and gifts for the winners.

This year's theme is "A Salute to Our Troops." Miss Hoopeston, Ashley Chezem will assist the girls during rehearsals and at the pageant, which will be held at 3 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 19.

Kathleen Margevich from The Academy of the Performing Arts will help choreograph an opening number and Larry Baughn will emcee the event.

Simpson and her sister started the pageant in 2004 after having grown up participating in pageants. "It was fun and gave us a lot of self-confidence, taught us things such as good posture, how to speak in front of people and most important, that you are not always going to win," she said. Pageants can be a real asset in life if the child is not pushed and the child, not the parent, wants to participate, she said.

For more information or to help, Simpson may be reached at (217) 283-4433 or at Extreme Attitudes, 1016 W. Penn.
