Shoes for Little Souls provides 169 pairs of shoes for kids

Youngsters who got school supplies from Hoopeston Multi Agency last week got an extra surprise.

Children were able to get a pair of new shoes to start the new school year, thanks to Shoes for Little Souls, a program started by Carole Bond at Prairie Green Church of Christ.

Shoes for Little Souls started at the beginning of summer, said Bond's daughter, Sara Anderson, who helped with the drive.

Bond, who listens to WGBL in Campaign, heard last year about a shoe collection drive and sent those to another country. While she liked the idea of collecting shoes, "she said there were plenty of kids here who needed new shoes," Anderson said.

From Prairie Green Church of Christ, it spread to other churches—including First Presbyterian Church and St. Anthony Catholic Church in Hoopeston—and medical facilities: surgery nurses and staff at Carle Hoopeston

Just some of the shoes collected for Shoes for Little Souls. Shoes were distributed, along with school supplies, at Hoopeston Multi Agency.

Regional Health Center and Carle's Surgicenter in Danville.

Additional donations came from a softball tournament sponsored by Michael Carswell and Hoopeston

Souls continued from other side

VFW Ladies Auxiliary, said Susan Redden, assistant director of Hoopeston Multi Agency.

Last week, the shoes - all 169 pairs of them - were arranged by size at the Multi Agency, a rainbow of footwear just waiting for school-bound youngsters to claim them.

The number of pairs collected surprised Anderson. When her mom told her of the idea, "I said we'd be lucky if we got 25 pairs of shoes," Anderson said. "This is just great!"
