John Michael Montgomery to perform at 2015 festival

Hoopeston Jaycees are proud to announce country star John Michael Montgomery will perform at the 72nd Annual National Sweetcorn Festival. Montgomery will be joined by opening act Flat-ville Road, featuring Hoopeston's own Taylor Wolfe. The concert will kick off at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 5 in the McFerren Park Annex.

Advance ticket are $15 each and are available at Mr. B's Café, Global Fashions and WHPO in Hoopeston and Merita's Family Restaurant in Rossville.

Tickets can be purchased at the entry gate the day of the event for $25.

Advanced tickets and special ticket packages are also available at www.hoopestontickets.com.

From the Blotter

Vance C.T. Labaume, 18, of Hoopeston, was arrested after police were called at 5 a.m. Sunday to the 300 block of East Maple for a report of a man breaking windows out of a car.

Labaume was charged with domestic battery on a complaint from a 20-year-old Hoopeston woman, and criminal damage to property over $500, for breaking the windows and a television. He was taken to the Public Safety Building in Danville to await arraignment.

Briefly

Telepharm meeting

An informational meeting to see gauge support for a pharmacy in Rossville will be held at 6 p.m. May 12 at Rossville Fire Station, 617 N. Chicago.

Homeschool group to meet

Hoopeston Public Library will host its monthly "Homeschoolers' Roundtable" at 7 p.m., Thursday. Library staffer and homeschool parent Nancy Stacey, and Lisa Lashuay, will discuss how to organize a homeschool co-op, along with developing field trips and extracurricular activities and organizing science and history projects. Updates will also be presented on new library materials available for homeschool students.

This group is open to any area parents who currently homeschool their children or are interested in doing so. For more information, call the library at 217-283-6711.
