University of Illinois Extension to offer series of three webinars on child development to help parents of young children

Are you a new parent who would like to gain knowledge on subjects that will help you and your child remain healthy, happy, and emotionally sound? Join the University of Illinois Extension for a series of webinars this fall for parents of young children.

This three-webinar series will cover topics including how to comfort an unhappy child, how to help your child get a jumpstart on reading and writing, and how to establish healthy emotional literacy in your child.

You can register for as many webinars in this series as you would like. Webinars in this series include:

What to Do When Baby Cries

Does it seem like your baby is crying for no reason? Have you done everything you know but he still cries? Learn about infant crying and ways to cope for both you and your child. This webinar will take place on Sept. 16 at 6 p.m. and Sept. 22 at noon.

Learning to Read and Write

Should we teach young children to read and write before they go to school? Before learning to read and write, children need to learn a variety of skills. Learn easy age appropriate ways to teach children the pre-reading and pre-writing skills needed to help them to become successful readers and writers when they go to school. This webinar will take place on Oct. 14 at 6 p.m. and Oct. 27 at noon.

Promoting Social and Emotional Competence of Young Children: Enhancing Emotional Literacy

It's time to explore the true value of emotional literacy in supporting young children's emotional development! This training will increase your awareness of the kinds of interactions between adults and young children that support enhancing children's emotional competency. This webinar will take place on Nov. 4 at 6 p.m. and Nov. 10 at noon.

Each webinar will be broadcast twice, and attendance is only required at one session, though you are free to attend all three if you would like.
