City employee health insurance to have better cost, options

A new health insurance plan will save money for city employees and offer more variety than was available last year, along with saving money for the city.

City officials were recently notified that Aetna, which currently provides the city's health insurance, was hiking premiums by 49 percent next year. The city's cost would increase from $200,000 this year to nearly $600,000 next year, said Ald. Bill Goodwine, finance committee chairman. "We didn't get it until mid-November so we've been scurrying to find (other coverage)."

Of the total cost, employees pay 11 percent, with the city picking up 89 percent.

Starting in January, city officials hope to go with the state's Local Government Health Plan, which offers more choices at lower cost for most employees.

Instead of deductibles of $2,500/$5,000, the new Local Care Health Plan would have $750 deductibles for both individual and family, with out of pocket (OOP) maximums of $1,750 and $3,500. Monthly premiums for this plan would be $101.04 for employee, $194.04 for employee +1 and $250.56 for the family plan.

Under the HMO choice offered by the state plan, OOP maximums would be $3,000 and $6,000, less than the $5,500/$11,000 maximums offered by Aetna. Premiums would be $100.08, $192 and $248 per month for employee, employee +1, and family, respectively.

Another choice, the Local Consumer-Driven Health Plan, would have the same OOPs as the HMO, with deductibles of $1,500/$3,000 for premiums of $80.88,

Insurance continued from other side

$155.28 and $200.64.

Under the current plan, premiums are $95.76, $201.12 and $301.68, which were to be increased to $142.56, $299.52 and $449.28.

Goodwine thinks Aetna increased its rates so drastically to rid itself of Hoopeston, which he called "not a good customer." For every dollar in premiums paid, Aetna has paid $1.26 in claims. "They've been losing money on us for several years in a row," he said.

Aetna may not have gotten totally out from under Hoopeston as it is one of the providers under the state plan.

The council, in a 5-0 vote, approved giving Mayor Bill Crusinberry authority to sign the healthcare contract. Aldermen Ryan Anderson, Alex Houmes and Chad Yaden were absent.

In other business, the council:

- Tabled discussion on a new roof for the water plant.
- Heard from Ald. Brandon Hamilton that the city police committee will meet at 8 a.m. Friday and move into executive session to discuss personnel.
- Hearing no disagreement from the council, Crusinberry said the next meeting will remain on January 2, 2018, a holiday for city employees.

• Heard from resident Steve Dazey, who asked when the city was going to do something to slow traffic down an alley off of Sixth Ave. that runs behind Silgan Containers. Crusinberry referred the matter to the street/alley committee.
