Aldermen prepare for next landfill expansion vote

Aldermen who have not yet voted on the proposed Illinois Landfills expansion are readying themselves for Tuesday's vote.

The Hoopeston city council will meet in special session at 7 p.m. Tuesday to decide whether the proposed 120-acre expansion will meet the needs of the intended 31-county service area.

The aldermen - David Borders, Harold Cox and Mark Drollinger - all received copies of the transcript from the original siting hearing.

Additionally, the three have examined at least part of the official record, according to a sign-in sheet at the municipal building.

The record includes not only the hearing transcript, but also the original application, submitted exhibits, objectors' testimony and minutes of special council meetings dealing with the landfill.

Borders spent Thursday reviewing the record at the municipal building, poring over the volumes of information.

According to the sign-in sheet, both Drollinger and Cox have examined the table of contents for the record. That document lists the contents of each volume of material.

Additionally, Drollinger said he is reviewing exhibit 13, the original application. "It's a lot of night reading," he said, adding the application is "probably the gut of" the landfill information.

Drollinger said he plans to "go back and check again" on other material in the record.

Cox has viewed the transcript and table of contents, but has not reviewed other parts of the record, according to the sign-in sheet.

The council's original decision to grant the expansion has been upheld on all but the need criterion. Once aldermen make that decision Tuesday, either side may appeal to the Illinois Pollution Control Board.

Fun for All golf course to host grand opening Saturday

Area residents are invited to take a swing at miniature golf this Saturday, and register to win prizes.

Fun For All miniature golf course will hold its grand opening from 1-10 p.m. Saturday.

Prizes include 20 individual passes for free golf games, four passes for families of four and, for the 100th golfer through the gates Saturday, a pass good for one free game of golf daily during July.

Additionally, special prices will be in effect for the grand opening. Two players may golf for the price of one and individual games will be 75 cents, rather than the usual $1.25 fee.

Carolyn Eyrich-Mastin purchased the course last September and has renamed and revamped the enterprise.

Eyrich-Mastin purchased the business for family reasons. Her sons - James, Jeremiah and Jeff - "all like to play miniature golf and it seemed like a good investment," she said.

Getting the course ready for business and operating it has been a family affair. Husband Steve Mastin did the carpentry work, including installing new wood on all 18 holes, while son Jeremiah repaired and repainted the rail engine
