Three Hoopeston businesses schedule changes of location

It's like a game of musical chairs involving Hoopeston businesses.

Three businesses are expected to move from their current locations within the next month.

Craftsmen Printing, currently at 109 E. Main, will move to 217 Bank St., the former site of the Illinois Migrant Council and Health Clinic.

Clinic officials will move their operation to 310 E. Main.

The Migrant Council has petitioned the Hoopeston plan commission for a conditional use permit at 406 E.

Thompson. If approved by the commission and city council, the council's offices will be moved there.

The move, at least for Craftsmen Printing, will allow the business office and printing area to be under the same roof. "It's going to double our floor space there," said Dan DeNeal, owner of Craftsmen Printing.

The move may also the business to expand services and add new equipment in the future, he said.

The presses will roll to their new address around the beginning of next month. "I'm hoping June 1 is the move day," DeNeal said.
