Finances are key to keeping district healthy: candidates

Editor's Note: In the next several issues, Just the Facts will look at candidates for Hoopeston city council, Hoopeston Area school board, Rossville village board and Rossville-Alvin school board.

ROSSVILLE—The possibility of consolidation is on the minds of two candidates running for the Rossville-Alvin school board.

The candidates, newcomer Ray Rice and incumbent Ed Perkins, agree that taking a hard look at finances is necessary to provide a good education.

Consolidation may be necessary at some point, said

Rice, "but my first priority is keeping this school system going for as long as possible."

Rice, 46, said he will represent all points of view, including "teachers (married to one), farmers (was one), the hourly wage earner (am one) and the person who pays property taxes to support this school district."

A Rossville-Alvin High School graduate, Rice attended DACC for one year, was a farmer for 25 years and has been a postal carrier for 26 years.

He said his strengths include a firm commitment to quality education, a willingness to share ideas and work with others and the ability to listen to both sides and be decisive.

Neighborhood Watch to kick off murder investigation Monday

A localized version of the mystery game "Clue" will begin at Monday's Neighborhood Watch meeting.

Hoopeston police chief Mark Drollinger has the scenario outlined and will give those attending a chance to figure out who killed the victim.

At Neighborhood Watch meetings over the next several months, interviews with representatives of various law enforcement and social agencies will present programs designed to lead up to the announcement of the killer, scheduled for October or November.

Monday's meeting will be held at 7 p.m. at the Hoopeston city hall. The public is invited.

Perkins, 47, said whether the district consolidates, joins a co-op or stays as they are, "it is the duty of our board to make their decisions based on sound information and not on personal desires. Our primary goal should be to provide the best education available to our student while maintaining the financial integrity of our district."

Perkins said his background, as owner/broker of Perkins Real Estate and Appraisals, and being a parent and taxpayer, will help him determine district needs.

Perkins graduated Rossville-Alvin schools and Eastern Illinois University.
