Hoopeston city council offers April 13 contests for voters

Editor's Note: This is part of a series of articles outlining candidates for office in Hoopeston and Rossville. The series will conclude next week.

Voters of Hoopeston's second ward will have a choice on April 13: re-elect a 20-year incumbent or put a new person on the city council.

Alderman John Haughee, 72, has served on the council for 20 years and has served on all standing committees.

Protecting the city's infrastructure is a priority to Haughee, who would accomplish the goal in five areas: making the city's water clean and healthy; upgrading streets; promoting parks and facilities; working with the police department to keep residents safe; and promoting a tax increment financing (TIF) district "to entice new citizens, new businesses and additional revenue into our community."

Haughee received BS and MS degrees from Indiana State University, Terre Haute, Ind., and is a retired teacher.

Mike Bane, 47, has "several ideas on how to make Hoopeston a better place to live and would like the opportunity to implement them."

Issues facing Hoopeston include replacing lost industry, problems arising from crime, drainage problems, neighborhood sidewalks that are in a state of disrepair, possible replacement of the city pool and the town's odor.

Bane said he would deal with the issues "by exploring all avenues to find the best solutions and keep the citizens informed of all progress – or why there has been none."

Bane graduated from Hoopeston High School and attended Danville Area Community College and the University of Illinois Police Training Institute. He is currently a part time investigator for ASI Security, Inc., Ludlow Police Department sergeant and has a private process-serving business.

Ward 1 voters will also have a choice to make, for a two-year term, between a relative newcomer and a challenger.

Rodney C. Kaag, 37, was appointed to the council to replace Mark Drollinger, who resigned to become police chief.

Kaag also sees several important issues in the city, including business growth, the proposed TIF district and the sports complex.

Kaag supports a TIF district, but said it must be thoroughly researched. He would like to promote business growth through long range planning to offer incentives ad by cooperating with the Chamber of Commerce and other groups.

As for the sports complex, Kaag said as alderman he is willing to assist the steering committee in any way possible.

Kaag graduated from Hoopeston-East Lynn High

Challenger Ron Longest did not return his candidate questionnaire; neither did Ward 3 challenger Tom Garrison.

Incumbent Alderman Harold Cox hopes to keep his fourth ward seat. "I have the time to serve and my door will be open to the people of Ward 4," he said. "We need to clean up our environment and be efficient in all aspects of our city government."

Cox is president of the Hoopeston Industrial Corporation and has served as Vermilion County treasurer, and owned the Hoopeston Insurance Agency for 37 years.

He is being challenged by Don York who was profiled previously.
