Local husband, wife receive accolades for contributions

An area husband and wife have received honors for their achievements.

Bonnie Manion of rural Hoopeston was named a recipient of the Pere Marquette Award given by the Catholic Diocese of Peoria. The honor is awarded to those who have given outstanding service to their local parish and the diocesan church.

Manion has been involved in St. Anthony's parish for many years. She is an Extra-Ordinary Minister of Holy Communion, member of the Parish Council and lay minister in pastoral care. She completed the diocesan lay minister leadership program in 1988 with a specialization in pastoral care.

With her husband, Paul, Manion has been a co-presenter at diocesan Engaged Couple Encounter weekends since 1993 and earlier was co-presenter at Marriage Encounter weekends at LaSalette Retreat Center in Georgetown. She and her husband have also been presenter at diocesan "Valuing Your Sexuality" programs as well as many others.

Manion received her award on Nov. 4 at St. Mary's Cathedral in Peoria. She was selected by former Bishop John J. Myers prior to his appointment as Archbishop of Newark.

Paul Manion was also honored recently when he was named among a number of prominent Illinois trial attorneys to contribute to a new publication of the Illinois Institute of Continuing Education, entitled Illinois Causes of Action.

The Illinois Institute of Continuing Legal Education works in conjunction with the Illinois Bar Association in conducting seminars and publishing literature to assist Illinois attorneys in maintaining and improving their skills.

Manion's contribution deals with a party's right to compel the production of information or testimony which might be necessary to determine whether a valid case exists on behalf of an injured party. It specifically describes the processes available for an injured party to subpoena documents or other physical items, as well as compel depositions with potential witnesses before actually filing a lawsuit.

The Manions have been married for 40 year. They have raised six children and have 10 grandchildren.
