Rossville officials to work with factory on grease problem

ROSSVILLE—Officials want to work with a local industry to prevent what could be a costly problem.

Grease coming from the local Con Agra plant has been found on rocks at the sewer plant and in the number one manhole, said Mayor Terry Prillaman. If allowed to continue, the grease could clog the village sewer system and create an "insurmountable cost" for the village which is already strapped for funds.

The last time the village cleaned grease from the sewer system, the cost was $58,000 to $60,000, Prillaman said. "We have to work with the industry in our community but they have to work with us," he said. "We can't afford to fix it if it becomes a problem."

In other business, Trustee Richard Birkey reported that a recent water problem at Merita's Family Restaurant was not caused by the village. The problem was traced to a soft drink machine in the restaurant which is expected to be fixed soon, Birkey said.

In unrelated matters, the board:

- learned the CSX Railroad wants to install safety gates at the Henderson St. crossing. The village may have to move a gas line or perhaps put in a curb, which might be reimbursed by the Illinois Department of Transportation. Any work on the crossing is at least six months away.

- heard from Trustee Kay Ritter that work on the 2002-03 budget will begin soon. Prillaman asked committee chairmen to shift as many expenses as possible into individual funds rather than putting them in the general fund, which is more than $180,000 in the red. He also asked trustees to limit expenses. "The economy is not good," he said. "We need to hold the line."

- approved hiring Karen Wall of Manion, Devens, McFetridge & Spiros, Ltd., as the village attorney.

- heard from Trustee Bob Merritt that gas rates for the month will remain at 83 cents per therm.

- learned the fire district and residents are still trying to work out a compromise on a new fire station.

- approved an intergovernmental agreement with Ross Township that would allow the township to build a new storage building on village property. Details of the agreement will be worked out later.

Rossville village board, police chief honor long-time employee

ROSSVILLE—Village board members and Police Chief Danny Danner paid tribute to a long-time village employee at Monday's village board meeting.

Santos "Romie" Romero was honored for his work with the village, which began in the early 1970s.

Mayor Terry Prillaman said he hired Romero under the former CETA program. From there, Romero worked his way up to superintendent where "he did a superb job," Prillaman said. Romero also worked as a police officer for the village and later as an auxiliary officer. "Whatever was needed from Mr. Romero was received," Prillaman said.

Danner thanked Romero for helping him when he first entered police work. "When I first started law enforcement, you got a lot of phone calls in the night," he said. "Thank you."

Romero thanked the board and Danner for the honor, telling Prillaman "I loved working under you."

After Romero left the meeting, Prillaman continued to praise him. "That's one dedicated individual that just left here," he said. "I wish I had a dozen more just like him."
