Hoopeston woman makes a difference in beautifying city

A Vermilion County woman stepped out to make difference, cleaning up in her community on Labor Day weekend.

Cleaning up parade litter was the focus of Kristi Hudson, Hoopeston area coordinator for Keep Vermilion County Beautiful.

Hudson decided to target piles of litter that accumulate along the 1.5 mile route of the Hoopeston Sweetcorn Festival Parade.

Although she had only a few volunteers, they picked up a lot of trash. "My husband and aunt helped me walk the route, collecting over 20 bags of garbage and lots of cans and bottles for recycling," Hudson said. "We hope next year we'll be able to line up more volunteers so we can double the amount of parade route garbage we collect."

The band of volunteers hauled the collected garbage to Vermilion Waste for disposal in the Hoopeston landfill.

Vermilion Waste also paid for a recycling booth at the festival. "Kristi and her volunteers registered 104 families for curbside recycling during the festival weekend," said county recycling coordinator Lynn Wolgamot. The effort nearly doubled the number of Hoopeston homes participating in curbside recycling.

For more information on the Keep Vermilion County Beautiful program or becoming a program member, call Wolgamot at (217) 431-2662 or email lowlgamo@vchd.org.

Live wire

Kyle Finley uses a "hot stick," a pole electrical linemen use in repairing outages, during a program Monday at Hoopeston Area Middle School. Finley presented a Live Line demonstration to Hoopeston schools, explaining the dangers of electricity and urging students to have their parents check their homes for safer equipment, including ground fault outlets and extension cords. Finley was slated to do a presentation for the Hoopeston Fire Department Monday night. The fire department arranged for Finley to give presentations in the schools.
