HA finances good , interfund borrowing will be necessary

Hoopeston Area's financial picture is pretty right now but the district will have to borrow from its working cash fund later in the year.

At Thursday's board meeting, Superintendent Mark Conolly presented mid-year financial information to the board. Conolly said 58 percent of budged revenue has been received, with expenses at 50 percent of what was budgeted.

The education fund pays most costs of education students, including salaries and materials. Most of the money in the fund comes from state aid and is subject to change, Conolly said.

Other funds, revenue and expenses include:

Building: 97 percent of revenue, 30 percent of expenses.

Transportation: 75 percent of revenue, 50 percent of expenses.

Municipal Retirement: 91 percent of revenue, 25 percent of expenses.

Working Cash: 79 percent of revenue.

Life Safety: 95 percent of revenue, 83 percent of expenses.

The board last year approved a "worst case scenario" budget but even if things go well and Hoopeston Area receives all its expected income, it will still
