Eliminating dog catcher allows small surplus in city budget

Eliminating the position of full-time dog catcher will allow Hoopeston's new budget to have a small surplus.

At Tuesday night's regular Hoopeston City Council meeting, aldermen unanimously adopted the 2006-07 budget, which shows a $4,422 surplus.

To achieve the surplus, the council approved eliminating the full-time dog catcher position, estimated to save about $12,000. Instead, the council will look to hire someone who will be on call 24 hours per day, seven days a week at a monthly stipend and per-animal fee, said Alderman Bill Goodwine, finance committee chairman.

The cut drew criticism from Police Chief Mark Droll-inger who said he was not notified of the cut. "As his direct supervisor, I was not in the loop about this," Drollinger said. A former alderman, Drollinger added he See CITY on other side

Motel construction on hold

Construction on a new motel has been pushed back.

At Tuesday's Hoopeston City Council meeting, Alderman Bill Goodwine said a redevelopment agreement between the city and Danville motel owner Bhupendra Naik hinges on a No Further Remediation (NFR) letter from the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency stating that the property at Rtes. 1 and 9 is not an environmental hazard.

The redevelopment agreement, which had been expected to be approved Tuesday to meet a May 31 deadline, was shelved after officials learned an NFR letter may not arrive for four to six months for a draft letter.

Naik agreed to the delay but told the council he may need more time on his end if, because of the current delay, construction runs into the winter.

Peace Corps Fellow Shannon Ruh said soil samples will be taken the week of May 8, which may speed up the process.

would not have made a personnel cut without informing the supervisor.

Drollinger said he had heard reports that the current dog catcher was not called out after hours but in the first three months of this year, 13 after-hours calls were handled by the dog catcher. Also, he said, the city cannot rely on the county's Department of Animal Regulation to enforce city ordinances.

Furthermore, Drollinger said, "picking up animals is not a law enforcement problem." In the 1970s, then-Chief Orval Kaag resigned over an expectation to provide animal control. "As for police becoming your dog catchers, I don't think we can do that."

No other positions were cut in the budget, Goodwine said.

Other cuts included about $30,000 in one-time expenses at Floral Hill Cemetery, including a columbarium, a vault to store ashes of the deceased, estimated at $20,000 and "mothballing" the Willdon Building. Vermilion County Health Department officials had previously decided against renewing its lease and with the building closing, the Hoopeston Chamber of Commerce will have to find a new home.

The budget calls for a three percent, across-the-board increase in employee wages and an additional $6,677 to equalize pay among employees in specific departments. An additional $10,000 is earmarked for downtown beautification.

The budget shows a $317,000 deficit in the water budget, including a $100,000 loan payment to the city. The deficit will be made up by reserves.

On the revenue side, three things that brought criticism from residents—the expanded landfill, utility tax and telecommunication tax—are providing a good chunk of the city's income, Goodwine said. Landfill fees paid to the city are estimated at $240,000; the utility tax is expected to generate $153,000 and the communications tax $122,000.

In unrelated action, the council:

- Approved Dawn Lawson's bid of $5,506.25 for perpetual care urns.
- Heard from Alderman Bill Crusinberry that inspecting and cleaning the ground water storage tank took longer than expected so the water tower work will be done in about three weeks.
- Approved changing water office hours to 7 a.m.-4 p.m.. Alderman Ed Lotz voted against changing hours saying he thought the office should be open 7:30-4:30.
