Hoopeston City Council approves new stop signs at Seventh St. at Seminary, Honeywell

The death of a 12-year-old Hoopeston boy focused city officials' attention on the need for stop signs along Seventh St.

At Monday's Hoopeston City Council meeting, aldermen voted 6-0 to amend the stop sign ordinance, allowing stop signs on Seventh at Seminary and Honeywell.

Stephen and Holly Eyrich, who live at the corner of Seventh and Seminary, presented a petition to the council at the October 21 meeting, signed by citizens supporting the addition of the signs.

The couple attended the meeting and, after the vote, Mr. Eyrich thanked the council, saying Seventh St. has "been an east side expressway at least for the 33 years that I've lived there."

In other action, the council approved purchasing an ambulance from Horton of Illinois in Manteno for an amount not to exceed $135,000. Alderman Brandon Hamilton, fire/ambulance committee chairman, said three quotes were received. The lowest was from Horton, with a base price of $127,276 plus an additional $6,510 for an LED light package, decals and other miscellaneous costs.

The ambulance is not expected to be delivered for four to six months, giving the council time to decide whether an existing 1998 model will be traded in or sold outright. The council also heard from resident Edith Schumacher, who complained about animals running loose. Schumacher said she has dealt with the problem for over a year. "I think this issue needs to be addressed now," she said.

Alderman Ed Lotz, police committee chairman, said a possible solution is in the works and asked for the public's patience.
