This year's volunteers for the St. Anthony Youth Group mission trip to Memphis Tenn.

Youngsters plan street corner collection for mission trip

St. Anthony Youth Group and friends will continue their fundraising for their mission trip this summer with a street corner drive Saturday. They will be positioned downtown in the morning and all day at the highway intersection.

"This year we have a 21 students intending to go," said Matt Warner, a fourth year participant. "Our goal is to raise all of the money ourselves. Program fees, food, gasoline and vehicles add up really fast."

The group will spend one week in June working in poverty areas of Memphis, Tenn. They will join 300 other high school age students. They break into teams of six or seven and tackle 45 to 50 jobs, usually painting houses. They sleep on the floor of a school and eat food prepared in the school kitchen. After each work day, they have an evening of social and spiritual programs.

"The program is hard to describe," said Erika Samet.

Mission continued from other side

“Just being with 300 other kids my age, now by definition that is fun. The staff at the camp are college age for the most part. They are inspirational and motivating, really good role models.”

The group tries to raise all of the money needed to travel far enough away to encounter a different experience. For example, there is always a free day. “Last year, we went to Denver,” said Aly Nicholls. “On our free day we went whitewater rafting on a Colorado river, (or, for some of us, ‘in’ the river). You would not believe how cold that river is in June.”

“In my two years of going to WorkCamp, I have seen and worked with different people, tasted different foods, toured historical areas and experienced new and different things such as white water rafting,” said Sara Hayn.

According to Dane Nicholls, “The funniest thing last year in Denver was- oops, I just remembered, what happened in Denver stays in Denver.”
