Former resident's Cornjerkers novel to be published in 2013

BLOOMINGTON—
The Dailey Swan Publishing Company of Pinole, Calif., is proud to announce that they will publish David Theobald's first novel entitled, "Cornjerkers." His book is scheduled for publication in 2013. However, no official release date has been established yet.

Theobald was born and lived in Decatur, Ind., until 1961 when his family moved to California. Eventually the family returned to the Midwest, settling in Hoopeston. "Cornjerkers," the saga of Hoopeston's class of 1968, is a story of best friends -- Schatzie, Pottsie, Punkinhead and Theo -- and old time family values still alive in the tumultuous Sixties. The fall of '67 was a time of new beginnings, a time for questioning. Television was filled with the horrors of war, political upheaval and campus protests, and the friends found themselves perplexed teens confronting complex social issues.

Dailey Swan Publishing a publisher whose goal is to bring the best new authors to the public feels Theobald's work has something to offer. Casey Swanson, publisher says, "Cornjerkers represents Baby Boomers who struggled with turbulent civil rights issues and the unrest of the Vietnam War era. This work is different because it combines genres. It is neither wholly a work of fiction nor, strictly speaking, a memoir. Rather "Cornjerkers" is a blend of fantasy, adolescent memories, folklore, and history."

Hoopeston woman wins award

DANVILLE— Jamie Compton, RN, adult medicine, Carle – Danville on Fairchild, has been recognized by Carle as recipient of The DAISY Award for Extraordinary Nurses.

COMPTON

The DAISY Award is a nationwide program, sponsored by The DAISY Foundation, which rewards and celebrates the extraordinary clinical skills and compassionate care given by nurses every day. Compton was nominated by a co-worker and recognized at a ceremony where she received a certificate, award pin, a commemorative hand-carved sculpture and a bouquet of white daisies.

She has been a nurse at Carle for three years and resides in Hoopeston.

This is Theobald's first endeavor outside of the business and academic world. He has spent the better part of his working career writing training material for life insurance agents and his Master's Thesis, Learning the Concept of Trajectory and Performance in the Shot Put, was selected by the University of Oregon as one of the top pieces of research in 1980.

More information about Cornjerkers will be announced in 2012. Readers can check Dailey Swan's website, www.daileyswanpublishing.com, for details as they become available.
