Local girl donates two years of hair growth to help others

Ten-year-old Alyssa Yaden has been growing her hair for almost two years. On Saturday, she got a chic new 'do and some child suffering from a debilitating illness will also get a new 'do, too.

Alyssa, daughter of Virginia and Chad Yaden of Hoopeston, donated 14 inches of hair to Locks of Love, a nonprofit agency that provides hairpieces to financially disadvantaged children in the United States and Canada under age 21 suffering from long-term medical hair loss from any diagnosis.

Alyssa brought a favorite doll with her. The doll had a bob cut, which is what Alyssa wanted for her hair.

Megan Anderson, stylist at Janet's Curl Up & Dye, gathered Alyssa's hair into a ponytail, wrapping it in a band Alyssa brought just for the occasion. Anderson explained that pulling hair into a ponytail creates an automatic bob that just needs to be evened out.

For hair to be accepted by Locks of Love, it must be in a single cut, held together with some kind of tie, Anderson said, adding she will put the ponytail in a plastic bag and mail it to Locks of Love.

Alyssa said she has planned to donate her hair for some time. "I know people who have cancer," she said. "I wanted to do something to help."

Main Street to be closed

Due to new water main construction in Hoopeston, Main Street is closed, except to local traffic. Garbage will be picked up in the alley for residents on the south side of Main and along the old railroad bed for residents on the north side, until further notice.
