Hoopeston Area ag program gets donations from Rossville Area Civic Club, Monsanto

Hoopeston Area High School's agriculture program was awarded and rewarded with funds from two groups.

Donations were presented at the April 17 board meeting.

Traci Randall, of Rossville Area Civic Club, presented North East Vermilion FFA with a check for $4,500, to go toward scholarships for FFA members. The donation came from last year's RACC tractor pull, which drew more than 2,500 people to Rossville.

The Marching Cornjerkers helped with parking last year, so RACC will also make a donation to the band.

Also, Scott Good, representative of Stone Seed Group and speaking on behalf of the Monsanto Fund, presented the FFA with a $2,500 award after it was designated as the nonprofit recipient by John Fourez, who won Monsanto Funds' Farmers Grow Communities contest in Vermilion County.

FFA advisor Emily McCray said funds will be used for indoor items, such as tables and tools to help with hands-on activities.

In other business, the board:
