Funeral home, casket company offer memorial program

Just in time for Breast Cancer Awareness Month, Anderson Funeral Home has partnered with the American Breast Cancer Foundation to offer families an easy way to support one the nation's most important causes.

"Nearly 200,000 American women will be diagnosed with breast cancer in 2012 alone. But through important education and outreach programs like those of the American Breast Cancer Foundation and other organizations, more than 1.6 million women say they have survived," said Ryan Anderson owner/director of Anderson Funeral Home.

Anderson Funeral Home's new program is called Sentiments, and it allows families to honor their loved ones by making a financial donation to the American Breast Cancer Foundation at no cost.

The funeral home has teamed up with Aurora Casket Company, and when families purchase an Aurora casket or urn, Aurora Casket Company makes a financial contribution on the family's behalf to the American Breast Cancer Foundation.

The American Breast Cancer Foundation provides financial assistance to uninsured and underinsured men and women of all ages for breast cancer diagnostic tests, including annual screenings and mammograms. The foundation is committed to early detection and awareness to give those diagnosed a better chance for effective treatment and survival. More information is available at www.abcf.org.

"This disease has touched so many of our lives. We are proud that we can help our families honor their loved ones and give back to the community. The best part is it doesn't cost the family anything. This program is not specifically just for women who have died of breast cancer. Aurora Casket Company allows families to use this as a donation for any family that wants to participate."

pate. Many lives have been touched by another form of cancer or perhaps families are just interested in charitable giving and service to others. Whatever, the reason there are no limits to who can participate in the program," Ryan Anderson added.

Anderson Funeral Home, formerly Hamilton-Orr Funeral Home, located at 427 E. Main St., has been serving families in northeastern Vermilion County since 1922.

Aurora Casket Company, located in Aurora, Indiana was established in 1890 as a family business. It is the largest privately-owned casket manufacturer in the United States.

For more information about Sentiments, contact the funeral home at (217) 283-6696 or on the web at www.Anderson-Funeral-Home.com.
