Hoopeston Area High School receives PBIS recognition

Hoopeston Area High School's PBIS (Positive Behavioral Interventions and Supports) program is getting noticed at the state level.

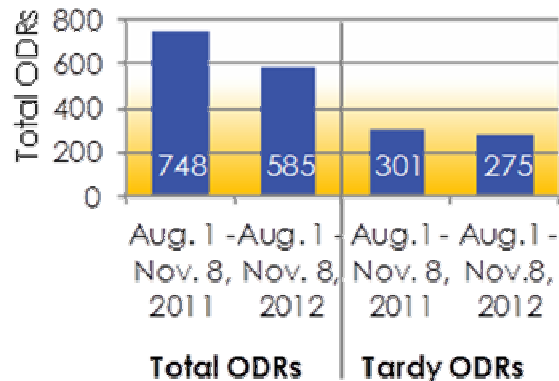

School officials were recently notified that the program will be featured in a state PBIS publication. The draft of information states:

"Teaching Social Behavior in High School Creates Positive Student Outcomes

Hoopeston Area High School in Hoopeston Area CUSD 11 continues to see a decrease in office discipline referrals (ODRs), out of school suspensions (OSS), and tardies. This school is in its fifth full year of implementation and recently renewed efforts to teach behavioral expectations effectively. As a result, ODRs have decreased 22% (748 to 585) for August through November of 2012 compared to the same period in 2011. Additionally, OSS have reduced 38% during the same interval and tardies are down 9%. Teachers attribute this improvement to daily teaching of expectations and students' high exposure to PBIS. The same behavioral expectations are used district-wide from kindergarten through high school."

School officials credit community and parent support in achieving the progress.

Dinner scheduled so no one will be alone on Christmas

Sue Comstock is hoping the community will help her with a project assuring no one will be alone for Christmas dinner.

Comstock is planning a dinner to be held at Hoopeston Multi Agency, 206 S. First Ave., at noon on Christmas day. Hoopeston IGA is donating the traditional turkey as the meat. Comstock is now looking for people to donate fixings for the dinner. Anyone who is interested in helping is asked to call her at (217) 495-1620.

Electric roasters are also needed to cook the turkey. Anyone who wishes to loan their roaster for the project may drop it off at city hall.

Those who wish to attend may call Comstock to make reservations, which would help in determining how much food is needed. Also, shut ins who would like to receive a meal are asked to call her, as well.
