 comedy, "Harvey," featuring Jimmy Stewart as Elwood P. Dowd, a good-natured man whose best friend happens to be a six-foot tall rabbit that only he can see. When his sister tries to have him committed, a mix-up occurs and she is committed instead, leaving it up to Elwood and "Harvey" to straighten out the mess.
 The movie and refreshments are free. Plans are to make the afternoon showing of classic movies a regular feature, said Linda Mitchell, library director.
 "We wanted to offer something fun and social for our adult patrons and felt the afternoon showing would especially appeal to seniors," Mitchell said. "If this goes over well, we hope to get input from those who attend on films they would like to see in the future."
 For more information, call the library, (217) 283-6711.
