Health department to host Affordable Care Act workshops

The public is invited to learn about the Affordable Care Act during two informational workshops this month.

Vermilion County Health Department staff will hold one workshop from 5:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. on Thursday, Nov. 21 at the health department, 200 South College St, Danville.

Health department staff will hold a second workshop from 5:45 p.m. to 6:45 p.m. on Monday, Nov. 25 at the Danville High School auditorium, 202 East Fairchild St.

There is no cost to attend the workshops, and attendees do not have to pre-register for the workshops.

Starting in October, individuals, families and small business owners have been able to visit www.GetCoveredIllinois.gov, the official health marketplace, to find the health insurance plan that is best for them.

The marketplace can connect Illinoisans with health insurance plans that cover doctor visits, hospital stays, preventative care, prescriptions and other benefits.

The workshops, which are sponsored by the Illinois Department of Public Health, will provide information about the marketplace, who qualifies for health coverage under the marketplace, how the marketplace makes health insurance affordable, and how people can enroll in health coverage through the marketplace.

For more information about the workshops, contact the Vermilion County Health Department at (217) 431-2662, ext. 229.

Agronomy team winners

The Hoopeston Area FFA Chapter placed 1st in the Section 18 Agronomy Contest held November 12, 2013 at Parkland College. Students were asked to identify crops and weeds by their seeds and/or plant structures, judge grain rings for which would be the best to plant or sell, identify insects and their damages, and took a test on crop production. Matt Stock was the first place individual, Kendall Walder second, and Laura Obenland eighth. Pictured are, from left, Stock, Walder, Skyler Reeves and Obenland.
