Letters to the Editor

Competition good for business
 Recently, I read an opinion concerning hard liquor sales. More government involvement destroys capitalism and free enterprise. I am all for competition and totally against monopolies. When business competes, the consumer wins.
 I don't drink. I never really have been much into alcohol. Personally, I don't understand how something that makes you hurl is so addicting.
 Let's give the guy a chance. I've been into a liquor store in Hoopeston. There's such little competition going on right now that in this day and age, one of those liquor-licensed stores does not even accept credit/debit cards! In 2014, competition is so slim that a business owner is actually able to continue the business without so much as a merchant ID.
 Sounds like Boardwalk and Park Place are already bought and paid for.

Citizens need to vote, take country back
 Recently I received some mail, which contained a list of the 10 most wanted corrupt politicians in Washington. The list included Speaker of the House John Boehner; CIA director, John Brennan; Senator Saxby Chambliss; Hillary Clinton; Attorney General, Eric Holder; former IRS commissioner, Steven Miller; former IRS official, Lois Lerner; Janet Napolitano; Barack Obama; Senator Harry Reid; and Health Secretary, Kathleen Sebelius. I would like to add Representative from California, I believe her name is Nancy P. I am not sure how to spell her last name.
 We now a government based on lies and untruths.
