Lives of Hoopeston heroes featured in HPL production

One night, a disappointed vagrant walks into a library program.

So starts the most recent work of local writer Tom Sweeney.

"Who's Who in the Corn Field" will be presented at 6 and 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at Hoopeston Public Library, 110 N. Fourth St.

The vagrant, portrayed by Mike Pemberton, listens as Janell Sechriest, the storyteller, relates dramatizations of famous people who once lived in the Hoopeston area.

- For example, former Hoopeston mayor's son, Tomas J. Hamilton, was a flight officer and Rear Admiral of the USS Enterprise, who made brilliant decisions about a kamikaze attack.

- Hometown Jean Hixson, one of America's finest aviators, became a finalist to be the first person to orbit in space. Her rejection is a heartbreaking story.

- Frankie Gustine, a three-time All Star for the Pittsburg Pirates, had huge fans nationwide in the days of Ted Williams, Joe DiMaggio and Jackie Robinson.

- The story of Hoopeston's Ralph Curry, the radar technician who released the atomic bomb over Nagasaki, is breathtaking. Seconds before the bomb is dropped, there is the famous quote about Hoopeston. Don't miss it.

- A rare sketch from novelist Mary Hartwell Catherwood suggests the locale of "Whooper City" (obviously Hoopeston).

- Rossville translator Samuel Putnam, astonished the literary world.

The cast includes Terri Hambleton, Sarah Miller, Scott Hudson, Dave Foster, Tom Benjamin, Kevin Jett, Jean Minick, Judy Benjamin, Maggie Cope and Yolanda Pemberton. Duane Sheppard contributes music to the show, written and directed by Sweeney.

"The six Hoopeston heroes in 'Who's Who in the Cornfield' accomplished extraordinary deeds," said Tricia Freeland, HPL director. "Our patrons will enjoy the information in this creative presentation."

"These stories are dramatized," Sweeney said, "because they should be. Hoopeston should be extra proud that it has so many heroes - especially for a town its size."

"Each of the six stories is told in different ways. Some are sentimental, some sad, others are comic. A storyteller weaves the audience through the various decades."
