dog on her property.

Cantu was issued a notice to appear in Hoopston City Court.

Two Hoopston women were arrested after police were called at 11:46 p.m. Sunday to the Downtown Motel, 200 E. Main.

Cassandra Gutierrez, 21, and Robin Irvin, 35, were each charged with battery and released on a notice to appear in Hoopston City Court.

An unidentified woman was treated at Carle Hoopes-ton Hospital after being run over by a car Saturday.

Police said Kayla Potter, of Rossville, got out of her 1932 Ford Roadster to wait for the parade to start.

The woman stepped behind the car to get her picture taken, and the roadster rolled backwards, knocking her to the ground and rolling over her.

A Hoopston couple reported Sunday that their 1997 Chrysler was stolen from their garage in the 800 block of East Maple. The car was found a short time later,
