Display to commemorate banned book week at library

The Great Gatsby To Kill a Mockingbird
1984 Animal Farm

A Farewell to Arms Gone with the Wind

These books - and hundreds of others - were once banned in America. Some books were banned because of language. Others were banned because of content. Some were banned due to the ideas in the pages.

The American Library Association (ALA) promotes the freedom to express one's opinions even if those opinions might be considered unorthodox or unpopular, and stresses the importance of ensuring the availability of those viewpoints to all who wish to read them.

ALA's Office for Intellectual Freedom works to promote awareness of challenges to library materials and celebrates freedom of speech during its annual Banned Books Week, observed from Sept. 27-Oct. 3 this year.

To commemorate Banned Books Week, Hoopeston Public Library is displaying information about freedom of information and books which have been banned or challenged over the years. Local residents are invited to stop by to view the display any time during regular library hours through October 3.

Residents can learn of volunteer opportunities at Carle Hoopeston luncheon October 10

Residents of Vermilion County can learn more about helping patients at Carle Hoopeston Regional Health Center during a special presentation about hospital volunteering on October 10.

Carle Hoopeston is beginning a volunteer program, where members of the community can help serve patients and their families in a medical setting. Volunteers are needed to assist patients and family members in the emergency room.

The special "Lunch and Learn" will be October 10, from 11 a.m.-1 p.m. in the hospital board room.

"Volunteers truly make an impact for the patients at a hospital, they bring those extra warm smiles and helpful attitudes that can turn the day around for patients and family members in critical medical situations," said Megan Holland, Carle director of volunteer services.
