FFA alum auction to feature food, ag items, services, more

Whether it's something to help produce the food we eat, or a deal on a place to eat it, Saturday's first annual Hoopeston FFA Alumni Scholarship Auction has something for everyone.

•Roger's Group/Herman Trucking: 1 load of rock 22-23 tons, delivered
 •Dralle Chevrolet: 2 oil change certificates

FFA alumni hope to boost kids with funds

Saturday's first FFA Alumni Scholarship Auction is a way for former Hoopeston Area FFA members to boost today's youth, both academically and professionally.

Proceeds from the auction will be used to support agriculture education programs and Hoopeston Area's FFA chapter, said FFA alum Russ Leigh. Funds will go towards giving FFA members scholarships to attend leadership programs, as well as community involvement events and agriculture opportunities. "Agriculture is an important part of our area and we want to make sure education for our students is given the importance it deserves by giving students opportunities to learn the latest technologies and developments in ag," he said.

Alumni want to support students with resources and opportunities to further students' potential, allowing them to pursue their dreams while contributing to the future of the grown of agriculture, he said.

The alumni group decided on an auction fundraiser, in part, because it allows businesses to give a product, rather than a cash donation and have the buyer use the business for its donated item, and hopefully, other products, as well, Leigh said.

To be held at Hoopeston American Legion, 502 E. Penn, the event will feature a silent auction from 3-5 p.m., food served from 4-6 p.m. and a live auction starting at 6 p.m.

Total value of items to be auctioned is $20,000 to $25,000. Items to be auctioned include:
