Save the Lorraine holds Last Call on original construction

The public's last view of the Lorraine Theatre auditorium as it was constructed in 1937 will be held at the Last Call open house on Saturday.

From 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., residents can breathe in the history of the Lorraine, enjoying the original art deco before the second phase of restoration begins.

In Phase 2, the sound panels, curtains and other decorative details will be removed. Workers can then begin cleaning and resealing the building's interior and preparing to install new panels and curtains as funding allows. The new interior will also be in art deco, using the original designs as a pattern.
