Rain challenges but doesn't dampen school prayer session

Proverbs 16:9 says "a man's heart plans his way but the Lord directs his steps."

The plan was for believers to meet at 6 p.m. Thursday at Hoopeston Area High School for a prayer walk for the schools, students, teachers and leaders, then walk to the other schools in the district and offer similar prayers.

However, a deluge which started shortly before the vigil resulted in far fewer steps as attendees prayed for Maple, Honeywell and John Greer from the dryness of the high/middle school.

More than 50 people from various congregations met in the high school auditorium for the vigil.

Prayers were offered by Micah Mobley, pastor of First Church of God, who organized the event; his wife, Carla, who is also an HAHS English teacher; Hunter Tibbs, Church of God's newly-hired connections and outreach pastor; and Bruce McQuigg, pastor of New Beginnings Church, of Hoopeston.

Prayers were also offered for former Hoopeston graduates now in college and the military.

After praying in the auditorium, the faithful walked the halls of the high school and middle school in groups and individually, continuing prayers for the district.

The vigil is the second one to be held this summer to pray for Hoopeston. The first, held July 30, was a gathering at McFerren Park to pray for Hoopeston police, fire and emergency personnel.
