From the Blotter

No tickets or injuries were reported in an accident at 1:51 p.m. Thursday in the 700 block of West Elm.

Police said Benjamin Glezen, of Batavia, was baking a Freightliner truck to a residence when he hit and damaged a utility pole.

A 16-year-old Hoopeston juvenile was charged with false alarm after police were called at 12:58 p.m. Thursday to Hoopeston Area High School. The youth was charged with false alarm under city ordinance and released to a parent.

After further review of an incident on August 24 regarding alleged cruelty to animals, a Hoopeston woman has been charged with three ordinance violations.

Candi Miller, 30, was charged with cruelty to animals and violation of rabies control ordinance and was released on notices to appear in Hoopeston City Court.

A 30-year-old Rossville man reported at 6:45 a.m. Friday that a storage lot in the 100 block of East Lincoln had been damaged and broken into.

A black and pink Huffy bicycle was turned into police Friday. The owner may identify and claim it at the police
