Carle to mandate protective gear to visit isolation patients

Starting December 1, those visiting Carle Foundation Hospital and Carle Hoopston Regional Health Center to visit a patient who's in isolation will have to wear personal protective equipment (PPE) to help guard themselves and others from illness.

Carle is following guidelines from the Society of Healthcare Epidemiology of America-Infectious Disease Society of America.

PPE in the hospital consists of gloves, gowns and/or surgical masks.

Hospitals need to isolate patients who have highly infectious diseases such as pertussis, flu, tuberculosis, measles, Clostridium difficile (C.diff) and Methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus (MRSA).

PPE protects the wearer from becoming infected. Before leaving the patient's room, they take off the PPE by the door and throw it away. This helps prevent spreading infectious disease.

If a visitor comes to Carle to see a patient in isolation, they will be directed to the nurses' station first to be instructed on isolation and proper PPE. Visitors will then put on PPE according to Carle policy and the types of isolation.

- Airborne isolation: Visitors will wear a mask at all times.

Children under age 12 cannot visit an isolated patient unless there are special circumstances cleared in advance. Adults must accompany all minors under age 12.

"Our staff wears PPE when taking care of patients in isolation," said Taffy Creviston, MPH, senior infection preventionist. From now on, if staff wears the protective gear, so must patients. Staff will explain why and how to put on PPE. "Keeping our patients, visitors, and staff safe is our top priority."

Curbing viruses and bacteria helps keep everyone safe. "We understand wearing PPE might be new for our visitors," said Robert Healy, MD, Carle chief medical quality officer. "But, we must do everything we can to stop the spread of infectious disease and visitor PPE is a tool to do that."
