Accountability = Graduation & Memorial Day

By BERTHA PARSONS

What on earth does accountability have to do with graduation? A lot. You see, graduation is an end and a beginning, it is now the time to be responsible for yourself. You may have one foot out the door and one foot still in the house. But now there is no Mom or Dad to take the blame or carry the load. It is all you.

If I were to ask the class of 2017 if they believe in themselves, some answers might surprise you. As a parent, family member or friend, one of the best gifts is to instill in them the importance of being accountable for their actions and remind them of their uniqueness and to trust themselves. No one knows to what heights they might soar until they spread their wings and fly.

Accountability applies to everyone, parents, grandparents, board members, council persons, teachers and pastors. Everyone. I've served on local boards of all kinds. Believe me when I say folks know and watch what you do every step of the way. I've been in restaurants or at a local event and someone will ask why I voted the way I did or what was I thinking? We are all accountable for our actions. There is always someone watching.

Memorial Day is time to remember our fallen soldiers. Yes sir, we have to be accountable. Many of us have lost someone that served for us. It is this day I think about my Father and his struggles in World War II. I wonder what he was thinking about home and me. Our soldiers serve because they believe in our country and have made a pledge to do their best. It is on their honor and it makes them great.

It's easy for us to be respectful one day a year. Really, every day we should be thankful for these fallen soldiers and those protecting us today.

May is a reflecting month of beliefs. We are all accountable. Remember, "the roads that we travel, the paths that we take are determined each day be the choices we make." (a wise man)
