In the spirit of giving

'Food for Fines' to start December 1 at Hoopeston Library

Hoopeston Public Library is offering its annual holiday "gift" to the community that will also support the Grant Township Food Cupboard.

From Dec. 1 through Dec. 30 only, library patrons can pay their overdue fines with canned food or other non-perishable items, which will be donated to the Food Cupboard.

For each item brought in, the patron will receive $1 off their library fine. "Food for Fines" is good only to pay fines, and cannot be used to pay for lost materials or other fees. Patrons will not receive change or credit if their fine is less than a whole dollar amount. For example, to pay all of a $2.50 fine, they must bring in three items.

Items should not be past their expiration date, should be in their original package, clean and not damaged. Some single-serve items may not qualify.

For more information, call the library, 217-283-6711.

'Penny for your thoughts' teaches Maple kids giving

Before some Maple students celebrated days off for Thanksgiving, they learned about being thankful and giving.

Pennies were hidden around Brenda Weston's second grade classroom. When a student found a penny, he or she stopped to think of something for which they were thankful, then dropped the penny into the class jar.

Pennies from the "Penny for your thoughts" activity were donated to a special charity to help people who don't have as much as the students and staff do.
