Snow depth halved to start plowing snow routes: Anderson

Hoopeston Street and alley employees will get an earlier start on snow removal this year.

Effective this year, snow routes will be plowed when the snow has reached 1.5", said Ald. Ryan Anderson, street/alley committee chairman. He made the announcement at Tuesday's Hoopeston City Council meeting.

In years past, plows did not hit the streets until snow was 3" deep.

Anderson said the city will go back to "the way it was done in the old days" when police would notify street workers of road conditions at 4 a.m.

Anderson noted that, had the new depth been in effect in the most recent snow, plows would have removed most of the snow and the sun would have melted the rest. Instead, the sun melted some snow, which then refroze, causing slick spots for the evening hours and into the following day.

Anderson said with scheduling, the change should not result in higher labor costs.

In other business, Ald. Brandon Hamilton announced that Trish Stebbins will take on the duties of municipal court clerk after current Clerk Greg Lane's retirement at the end of the month.

Stebbins was hired in May as part time accounts receivable/payable clerk and will combine both positions, Hamilton said.
