Students participating in the 2019 Envirothon, sponsored by Illinois Soil and Water Conservation Districts, gather outside the McFerren Park Civic Center.

Scores of high school students from six counties converged on the McFerren Park Civic Center on April 2 for the 2019 Envirothon, sponsored by Illinois Soil and Water Conservation District Land Use Council 7.

Forty teams of five students each competed in areas including wildlife, aquatics, soils and forestry, as well as a current event topic.

Counties represented at the competition included Vermilion, Champaign, Douglas, Edgar, Coles and Clark. Vermilion County fielded six schools and 10 teams: five FFA teams and five science teams. Other schools participating were Armstrong, Danville, Georgetown, Oakwood and Salt Fork, said Lisa Leigh, Vermilion County SWCD administrative coordinator.

After testing in the morning, followed by lunch, several groups presented 10-minute talks on this year's current event topic, "Agriculture and the Environment: Knowledge and Technology to Feed the World."

Oral presentations will be judged in May at Allerton Park. The first place team from Edgar County will attend that event.

Mahomet-Seymour FFA took first place overall in the event with 327 points, followed by Oakwood FFA with 290 and Oakland FFA with 284.

Several Hoopeston entities contributed to the success of the Envirothon, included Hoopeston administrative and parks departments, Hoopeston Area High School media department, Mr. B's Café, which served lunch. DACC instructors also volunteered for the competition, and Vermilion County Pheasants Forever was an event sponsor.
