Former Hoopeston woman gets Indiana's highest citizen honor

Former Hoopeston resident Alexis Dean Rosales was recently recognized with the Distinguished Hoosier Award by Indiana Gov. Eric Holcomb. This award is one of the highest honors given by the State of Indiana to its citizens, and is granted at the discretion of the governor to outstanding residents for their accomplishments and contributions to their communities.

"It was a privilege to present Alexis Dean Rosales with this award to recognize her more than 12 years of work at the Indiana Department of Correction," Gov. Holcomb said. "She's played a critical role in revamping educational programming and vocational training initiatives that are helping lower recidivism and empowering inmates to enter the workforce."

Rosales recently accepted a new position with Gateway Foundation, and will be relocating to Chicago with her husband, Rick.

Rosales is a 2002 graduate of Hoopeston Area High School. She earned a bachelors degree from Indiana State University in 2006, and a Masters in Public Affairs from IUPUI in 2019. She is the daughter of Terri and Mel Hambleton, and Mike and Teresa Dean, all of Hoopeston.

ago, saw Cereal & Cinema offered at a small theater in Indianapolis.

When the movie starts, orders will be taken to Mr. B's. At 20 to 30 minutes into the movie, the film will be stopped and food delivered to their seat/table, then the movie will resume.

Traditional concessions will also be available for purchase.

The idea "caught my attention since we had been doing Pizza and a Picture for a few months, at that time," Pierce said. With the pizza/movie combo a success and thinking it would be "a great idea for families," she brought it up to the board, noting it would not work as an every Saturday promotion.

"It would have to be the right movie to get people up and out of the house early on a Saturday morning," she said. "As soon as Frozen 2 was released, I knew that was the right movie!"

The Lorraine board then approached Robin Lawson at Mr. B's, who was "on board immediately," Pierce said. Both parties then worked out the breakfast choices that would be available and Box Office Breakfast with Mr. B's was official."

The foundation hopes to offer Box Office Breakfast on a quarterly basis, depending on what films are released at the time. "This will be a great addition to the Little Lorraine and area families," Pierce said. "And we can't say enough about how awesome Pizza King and Mr. B's are to support the Lorraine Foundation with Pizza & Picture on Fridays and Box Office Breakfast with Mr. B's."
