Uncertainty rains on Thunder in the Corn's two-night debut

The expansion of Hoopeston's Thunder in the Corn to a two-night NTPA Grand National will have to wait until 2021. Citing ongoing uncertainties regarding social gathering restrictions in Illinois, organizers have elected to cancel the pull.

"The decision to cancel was not an easy one," noted Hoopeston Area FFA Alumni organizers. "However, the safety of the community, volunteers, sponsors, participants, and spectators is the highest priority."

The 77th annual National Sweetcorn Festival, which was to have coincided with the pull on Friday and Saturday, September 4-5, remains scheduled for Labor Day weekend as of this release.

"It's a real letdown for us to not be able to bring the thunder to McFerren Park this year," said Gregg Randall, NTPA General Manager. "The folks in Hoopeston showed their mettle last spring when they fought through an all-day rain to have a Regional National pull. But this year has just rocked everyone's world, and even the late-summer date during the traditional corn festival wasn't deemed to be safe."

Tentative dates for next year's event are September 3-4.

"The NTPA is proud to have Hoopeston as one of the venues that will help us determine our 2021 champions. We will see the fans of the Illiana region over Labor Day weekend next year, and we'll deliver them a heck of a pull."
