County has biggest one-day increase in positive Covid cases

The number of confirmed cases of COVID-19 took a leap this week when a record high one-day total was announced Tuesday.

Public Health Administrator Doug Toole reported 16 new cases Tuesday, including two residents in their 70s, four each in their 50s and 60s, two each in their 20s and 30s, and one each in the 40s and teen years.

Toole said two of the new cases are married, two are family-related and one person recently traveled to Missouri.

One of Tuesday's cases was removed from the Vermilion County total on Wednesday, after it was discovered the person was not a county resident, said Melissa Rome, Vermilion County Health Department emergency planning and response coordinator/community liaison. She announced two new cases, a person in his 50s and a teen.

Vermilion County currently has a cumulative 298 total confirmed cases as of Wednesday. Of those, 25 are in home isolation and one is hospitalized. Three people - all over age 70 - have died from novel-coronavirus complications and 269 have recovered. There have been 18,127 negative tests on county residents. By zip code, 60942 and 60963 are holding at 23 and six cases, respectively.

While 20 Illinois counties are in warning status for missing state benchmarks, no county adjacent to Vermilion is on that list.
