Council approves amended ordinance; letters sought for seats

In a 5-0 vote, Hoopeston City Council on Tuesday approved an amended general nuisance ordinance to cut down on weedy jungles in the city.

The amended law addresses issues of standing water and overgrown brush which can harbor insects, pests and vermin, as well as which block pedestrian travel on sidewalks or impair motorists' views on streets.

The ordinance was set for a vote last month but was tabled after Ald. Bill Goodwine asked for a definition of "alternative vegetation."

Ald. Carl Ankenbrand asked, "Who would enforce this?"

"I don't know," said Ald. Robin Lawson, who presented the ordinance. "I would assume the same person who's enforcing them now."

Crusinberry said Chief Jim DeWitt has been citing ordinance violators, adding he plans to hire a licensed building inspector to determine dangerous building violations.

Goodwine approved the new draft, along with Ankenbrand, Lawson, Jeff Wise and Lourdine Florek. Ald. Bill McElhaney was absent and the seats formerly held by Alex Houmes and Chad Yaden are vacant.

Regarding those vacancies, Mayor Bill Crusinberry said he will accept letters of interest for Yaden's Ward I seat and that letters of interest are still being accepted for Alex Houmes' seat in Ward III. Letters may be mailed to Crusinberry at Hoopeston City Hall, 301 W. Main St., Hoopeston IL 60942 or emailed to him at billcrusinberry@hoopestonil.gov.

Corrections

• It was incorrectly reported in the print edition of Wednesday's paper that Chad Yaden represented Ward IV.

• In Thursday's issue, Robin Lawson's name was omitted from the list of aldermen who remotely attended Tuesday's Hoopeston City Council meeting.

Just the Facts regrets the errors.

"I always believe in trying to recruit the best people," Goodwine said, suggesting a list of registered voters in each ward be gotten and reviewed for possible candidates.

Crusinberry said he would contact Vermilion County for a list.

In other business, the council:

- Heard from Wise that alley cleanup is still going on, saying, "With the weather and the wind, be patient with us."
- Wise also asked if records are still being digitized. Crusinberry said Trish Stebbins continues to input information and that he's had to sign several deeds lately.
- Unanimously approved a $2,730 bid from Treasured Roots for 39 grave blankets for the perpetual care program at Floral Hill Cemetery.
- Heard from Florek, who thanked John McBride and ERH Enterprises for their recent help.
