Local artist gifts Outlaws founding member with drawing at recent concert in Watseka

A local artist's recent work, recognizing musical talent, resulted in some recognition for the artist, as well.

Hoopeston artist Brian Pierce recently presented a drawing to Henry Paul, founding member of the southern rock group, The Outlaws, as well as The Henry Paul Band and Blackhawk.

The drawing depicts Paul playing guitar in front of a crowd, standing in front of The Outlaws logo, a long-horn steer skull.

"It was pretty cool," said Todd Bailey, who, with his wife, Pat, accompanied Pierce to The Outlaws' October 14 show at the Watseka Theatre. "Brian worked on that drawing for a couple months prior to the concert," Bailey said. "Henry was taken aback and so appreciative. He signed our prints for us and we stood outside his tour bus and talked for a while.

He even posted this on the Outlaws Facebook page, where he wrote: "One of the endearing parts of this job is meeting people who have been significantly impacted by your music and feel motivated to give ou something that they've created as a token of their appreciation. This was the case the other night when the Outlaws played (Watsaka) IL. The man on the left is the artist Brian Pierce. His kindness and generosity is deeply appreciated. Thank you Todd for the heads up and Thanks again Brian!!!!!"
