Farm Bureau presents awards, names directors at meeting

During Vermilion County Farm Bureau’s 101st Annual Meeting last week the organization re-elected five directors and presented three awards.
Morris Chesnut, of Ridge Farm, was presented the Farm Bureau Distinguished Service Award for 2019. Chesnut is a long-time, active member with Vermilion County Farm Bureau. He served a total of 17 years during two stints on the Board of Directors from 1982-2004, including three years as treasurer and three as vice president.
He has been active with the Legislative & Local Affairs Committee, and has hosted legislators on his farm. He was also a volunteer classroom presenter during the early days of Ag in the Classroom. In addition, he reviewed historical documents in preparation for the 75th anniversary and was actively involved with the 100th anniversary celebration.
The Ag in the Classroom Teacher of the Year Award winner is Chris Jarusvski, a kindergarten teacher at Mark Detman Elementary School in Danville.
A Vermilion County native, she is in her 30th year of teaching, with her entire career in Danville District 118.
Her kindergarten friends are like little sponges, soaking up everything around them. Jarusvski enjoys hatching chicks in her classroom every spring, and it’s during that time her students begin to develop their writing skills. She recently took her students to Fair Oaks Farms to see the animals and pick apples. They later made applesauce from those apples in their classroom, connecting the farm to the food they eat.
Spokesperson of the Year Award was given to Lynn Rohrsehein, of Fairmount. Rohrsehein has wanted to farm since she was a little girl. She’s also been a great spokesperson for the industry she loves.

Rohrscheib began her involvement with Vermilion County Farm Bureau in 2003 at the age of 19. She’s been active on the Young Leaders and Legislative & Local Affairs Committees, meeting with legislators and participating in outreach programs like Farm Bureau’s grocery bagging events.

She also serve on the Illinois Soybean Association board for six years - including two as chair - and continues to serve on the United Soybean Board.

She has taken numerous trips to Washington and overseas, promoting Illinois soybean farmers and urging customers to purchase beans from our state.

Directors re-elected to the Vermilion County Farm Bureau board during the meeting include Brian Blackford, of Armstrong; Steve Huls, of St. Joseph; Ted Olson, of Danville; Mark Shepherd, of Fithian; and Jason Smith, of Georgetown.
